

The

GRINGO KINGS

Boston's Latin-Salsa-Jazz horn band

Driven by five horns, piano, bass and drums, The Gringo Kings deliver earfuls of groovin' sounds for the dancer and listener alike.

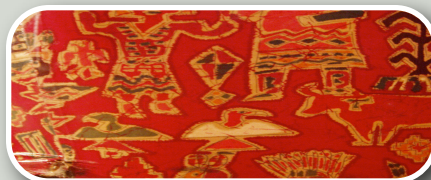

The brainchild of tenor saxophonist and composer/arranger Ed Harlow, the Gringos walk the infinitely fine line between art and fun, hot and cool, seriousness and bedlam - all this without ever losing the groove!

The Gringo Kings bring an amazing array of talent and experience to the stage. Collectively, the musicians have played with some of the most famous musicians and bands of our time, including Tony Bennett, Wynton Marsalis, Tierney Sutton, Tower of Power, Clark Terry, Chaka Kahn, Bob Brookmeyer, Maria Schneider, Extreme, Jean-Luc Ponty and The Dirty Dozen Brass Band. Individuals from the Gringo Kings have toured the US, Latin and South America, the Caribbean, Europe and Asia.

The Gringo Kings take the Latin elements of Salsa, Merengue, Choro, Bolero, then get up a good head of steam, and drive it head-on into the jazz cosmos.

The resultant music might be a Tito Puente record copy, a Chicago derangement, or an entirely new piece of music colored and inspired by the music of all the Americas.
